Will Battle For Title

The local football season will be brought to a close Saturday afternoon when the Scholastics and Crescents meet at Page park to decide the lightweight championship of the Monongahela valley. These two teams met several weeks ago, but after one of the hardest games ever witnessed on a local gridiron the contest ended with neither side being able to score a point.

Great rivalry has existed between the two aggregations during the season and the game Saturday promises to be one of the best ever staged yet Both teams are practicing hard and it is probable that several new faces will be seen in the lineups. "Ching" Manown, the quarter back of the State college team, will likely play for the Scholastics, as well as Tony Conti, the star halfback of this year's champion High school team. O'Rourke and several other stars of former years, may get int the game for the Crescents. Heinie Spiegelberg, the Scholastic star, has fully recovered from his injuries and will be at his old position. The game will be called at 3:30.

Olympic Theatre

Mme. Petrova, one of the most beautiful and greatest of Broadway actresses, now playing in the leading theatres of America upon the speaking stage at $2.00 up to $25.00 admission, is taking part as Jennie Lefarce in "The Vampire," an intense, powerful and realistic photoplay in which the regeneration of a woman more sinned against than sinning, is depicted beautifully. It is a similar play to "A Fool There Was" with the difference that Mmme. Petrova is away above Theda Bara for her beauty.—Olympic tomorrow. 1t

Visiting Teachers Here Yesterday

Attendance records were broken yesterday at the local teachers' institute when large delegations of pedagogues from Rostraver township and Charleroi attended the sessions. The Rostraver township teachers arrived early in the morning and remained until the last number on the program in the evening. The Charleroi teachers were not so fortunate and did not get here until the opening of the afternoon session.

Yesterday's sessions were the best of the institute and the climax was reached yesterday afternoon when Dr. S. D. Fess gave his excellent address on "Half the World in Arms." The huge auditorium was almost filled to capacity when Dr. Fess appeared on the tage and throughout his lecture he commanded the close attention of his audience.

The Schumann Quintet was the attraction last evening and they brought to the audience a new idea, that of presenting symphonic concerts with a company of only five musicians, each an artist.

Carl Lampert, the leader of the quintet, is a musical genius. He knows more about music than some people do about walking and he loves his audience as well as his music. He treats them as if they were close friends that he invited to his room for a little confiab. He is neithe pretty nor graceful, but far more important he is sympathetic and sincere. Lampert and his efforts and explanations may have been appreciated by the audience, but when it came to applause, the soloist of the evenig a charming young lady with a personality all her own, simply captivated the audience with her numbers and could it have been the wish of those present, she undobtedly would have appeared many more times during the evening.

Good programs have been prepared for today's session and includes lectures by Dr. William D. Henderson, of the University of Michigan and Dr. F. W. Hinitt, president of the W. & J. college. This evening the last of the evening entertainments will be given when L. B. Wickersham will give his lecture. Mrs. Letha Frazier Rankin will give a vocal solo and the High school orchestra will furnish several musical numbers.

WALLACE HOOD MOVES UP TO THE FRONT IN CLOSE RACE

Tick-tack, tick-tack, tick-tack! Every swing of the pendulum brings the close of the special 50,000 extra vote offer for every club of $10 the nearer; the minutes tick away and lengthen into hours, and only a few days remain before the giving away of thousands of extra votes will stop. Just three days more there are, and when the hands of the clock point to 10 p. m., Saturday, Dec. 4th, then this great vote offer will cease.

Candidates throughout Monessen are watching the clock, for every moment counts with them. To bring in subscriptions in clubs of $10 before the closing hours means a vote jump that will place thme right up where they can see visions of a magnificient fortune coming right in front of their door.

And here is the offer in detail:

50,000 EXTRA VOTES FOR EVERY CLUB OF TEN DOLLARS TURNED IN UP TO 10 P. M., DEC. 4th

Every contestant, who brings or sends in $10 in new or old, large or small subscriptions, between the start of the contest and Saturday, Dec. 4th, at 10 o'clock in the evening will be given a voting coupon of 50,000 extra votes in addition to the regular number of votes allowed for each subscription. The time is short, so you see you must get right to work, otherwise the offer will be of no help to you.

Remember you are not compelled to bring or send in the $10 in one lump sum. For instance you may bring in $5.00 today, $3.00 tomorrow and so on. A careful record of every dollar turned in during this clubbing offer will be kept and as soon as the contestant has a club of $10, the extra votes will be issued to the contestant.

This offer is open to all contestants and you can easily see that by a little work you can outstrip your competitors and gain the lead.

There is no limit to this voting offer—each contestant can earn as many of these voting coupons for extra votes as possible.

Subscriptions should not be held back until Dec. 4th, but turned in as fast as received.

CONCERNING FUTURE EXTRA VOTE OFFERS TO BE MADE

In every contest there are extra or bonus vote offers from time to time and there will be extra vote offers in this campaign. But a subscription turned in at the beginning of the campaign will be counted on this vote offer. This plan safeguards the interests of all candidates who work. People will tell you to wait until the last because there will be bigger vote offers announced. This is untrue of this contest for more votes will be given during this present extra vote offer than any other time in this campaign.

More Improvements

Manager Harry Lebowitz of the Olympic pool and billiard rooms, opened his new addition last evening. With the addition of the extra space, Mr. Lebowitz has the distinction of operating one of the best equipped pool, billiard and bowling halls in the valley. The room is well lighted and was decorated especially for the occasion last evening. The Donora duck pin team, which recently defeated the locals by one pin will be here tomorrow night for a return match.

Local Case In Court

The last case this week on trial in common pleas court before Judge Charles D. Copeland was up Wednesday morning. The parties to the suit come from Monessen. Some time last year improvements were made along Fourth street in this town. It is alleged that a cut was made and in doing the work a wall to a brick building was undermined. The borough of Monessen, represented by Attorneys Robbins & Wyant, is the plaintiff, and Axil Ruuti, represented by Attorneys Beacom & Newill and Barnhart, is the defendant.

Womans Club Met

Sixty members and friends of the Womans Club of this city were in attendance at the meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. R. Pore on McKee avenue. Mrs. Alice M. Carmalt of the Board of Public Education of Pittsburgh, was present and spoke on "The Relation of Club Women to New Movements in Education."

Following her address a sale of artincles made by the blind was held. The occasion proved one of the most interesting of the season for the club members and their invited guests. Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Pore, who was assisted during the afternoon by Mrs. C. S. Duvall, Mrs. J. H. Farquhar, Mrs. Calvin Dils, Mrs. Daniel Reamer and Mrs. Herbert O. MacDonald.

File Expense Account

This is the last day for filing of expense accounts incurred at the election November 2 by candidates. Judge A. D. McConnell Tuesday afternoon filed an itemized account showing that his total personal expenditures in connection with his campaign for reelection were $1,537.98. Over $1,000 of this amount was used for postage. Very few of the candidates have filed their accounts, but all will probably get under the wire today.

Take Legal Step

Another legal step was taken this morning in the suit of the Tri-State Water company against the Firestone Distilling company. A rule was granted on the water company to show cause why its failure to file its answer to the rule to show cause why an issue should not be framed to determine the ownership of the goods and chattels levied upon some time ago.

Jail Sentence Was Given Wife Beater

Wife beaters are becoming a common nuisance in this vicinity and harly a week passes that one of the brutes do not turn up in police court. Burgess Dunlap always slaps on the full penalty which gives the prisoner their choice of a fine of $10.00 and costs or thirty days in jail, but the fact that they can escape a workhouse sentence perhaps keeps the practice in vogue.

Yesterday morning Philip Higson admitted the fact that he slapped and kicked his better half and was fined $10.00 and costs, but escaped the 30-day penalty when his wife came to the rescue and paid the fine. This morning John Center, a butcher residing in McMahan faced the Burgess and was found guilty of beating his wife. He was fined the usual $10.00 and costs and not having the necessary amount of cash in hand, he will probably spend the next 30 days in the county jail.

Mrs. Center was the prosecutor this morning and she testified that when John came home filled with booze, which was rather frequent, he generally used her as a punching bag or football, and although she argued the matter, he refused to desist, and she finally decided as a last resort to bring the law on him.

Frank Clarke, another butcher, haling from Connellsville, arrived in town yesterday and after getting a fairly good load of beer, whiskey and other beverages of an intoxicating nature, he started in to tell the residents of Donner and Schoonmaker avenue what he thought of them. Telephone calls came in fast and furious at police headquarters and Mr. Clarke was soon rounded up. He attempted to apologize this morning but was fined $5.00, and not having that amount, left after his celebration, he will be found on the street gang for the next thre days.

More Rumors Of New Plant

In pursuance of the progressive spirit shown at all times by the prominent men in industrial development of the Monongahela valley, comes a rumor that new activities will be started in this city in the near future.

Efforts are now under way for the erection of a plant here that will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000. The company intends to manufacture ice and maintain cold storage. The new plant will be erected near the Motz Lumber company buildings at Donner avenue and Oneida street and will include the old plant of the Firestone Distilling company. Definite plans have not as yet been announced and future activities depend on the sale of stock for the new concern.

The Price of Peace

Laura Jean Libby sums up the situation thusly: "It is cruel to judge a man harshly unless one knows all the facts in the case. We may wonder why our neighbor across the way can sport an automobile in which he seldom rides and keeps up an expensive family on $3,000 a year and censure him for doing so. But we do not know the whys and wherefores of the case Not one man out of a thousand would think of taking upon himself the upkeep of an automobile with such a salary—of his own volition. There is usually a great amount of urging to bring it about. The wife decides that she is not strong enough to walk and that she and the children must get air. Her friend has an automobile and her husband's salary is even less. The wife begins by hinting for this luxury, despite all that he can say that it is a millionaire toy. The poor husband hears nothing else morning, noon and night while he is in the house. In sheer desperation he takes the money which he has saved and purchases an auto. He is fairly driven to this step at the price of peace. "It won't cost us anything to keep it," the wife declares. "We can keep it in the barn, seeing we have no horses. As for a chauffeur, I can handle the little runabout without the least trouble."

No peace loving husband can stand the strain of continual nagging without giving in eventually. The little car is duly installed in the barn. For a fort night wifey is all smiles. He is met with a hug at the door. When he sees her rosy cheeks and the glowing faces of the little ones, he concludes that there might be worse investments when one counts up health. He is pleased to see those so near and dear to him fairly living out in the open and the sunshine.

"We ought to have a larger car, dear," wife declares after a fortnight. "The best people in town are beginning to take notice of me now, thinking we are on the rise." "Their husbands are starting in to inquire how much money I'm making," sighs her husband. "I can't possibly take my dear friends in that little wheelbarrow," sobs the wife.

This is what he gets for breakfast, dinner and supper. Cars skid even through his troubled dreams. He cuts down his cigars, blacks his own shoes, buy the cheapest grade of shirt. Does everything in his power to stem the tide of the loose, fast slipping dollars. He went to all this expense for peace at home. But does he get it? Wife is never at home any more The babies are taken over to her mothers and left there."

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of Monessen residents? After you have read the following, quietly answer the question.

Mrs. W. Koerner, 119 Knox avenue, Monessen, says: "I had a bad fall which injured my back. I suffered from a constant pain across my loins and in the morning I was always worse. If I stooped, a sharp pain caught me and I couldn't straighten. The secretions from my kidneys were unnatural and caused me annoyance. I didn't rest well and rheumatic pains made it hard for me to get about. I was often so lame that I had to sit on one cushion and I had puffy sacs beneath my eyes. I doctored and tried different medicines, but got no relief. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills procured at the Hirsch Drug Co. drove away most of the trouble. I take this medicine off and on as a kidney tonic and it keeps me in good health."

A STATE MESSAGE

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

"Carl," said the hereditary prince of Auretania to his chum, Count Krakousky, "the diplomats have got up a match between the Princess Alexia of Metropolia and myself. They consider it a fine political deal for me when I come to the throne. That's all very well, but I don't propose to tie myself down for life to a Gorgon. I wish you to look her over and report."

"Anything your highness desires," replied the count, "but I'll not promise to keep off your preserve. I may win the meat of the nut and leave you nothing but the shell."

"If you find her a Jezebel I hope you will. However, I'll have you watched. I wish you to take a young man with you named Caspar Audenreid. He'll join you at Metropolia."

The count saw nothing of Audenreid till having been accorded an interview with the princess. As he was about to enter the palace a man accosted him and showed him a letter from Prince Otto announcing that he was Caspar Audenreid, and they went in together. They were received by a maid of honor, who told them that the princess would receive them presently. In the meantime the maid of honor did what she could to entertain them.

When the princess came in Count Carl, who was saying what he had to say for the princess, was looking out through a window, leaving the maid of honor to Audenreid. Carl approached the royal lady with great impressment, bowed very low, kissed the tips of her fingers and told her that his master had sent him to assure her of the happiness he anticipated in their approaching union. The princess received the messenger graciously and proposed that they should walk in the royal gardens.

The maid of honor rose to follow her mistress, but the latter gave her by look a command to remain away. The count and the princess proceeded to the gardens, where her royal highness led him to a bower and, motioning him to a seat beside her, asked him to tell her all about the man she expected to marry. Was he tall or short, a blond or a brunette, handsome or homely, witty or dull? Indeed, she fired questions at him so fast that he could not find opportunity to reply to them all.

But while she was talking of the prince she seemed to be thinking of the count, now throwing her eyes at his, now taking them suddenly away, only to turn them back again. It was not long before Carl began to think that his threat to rob his master of the princess' heart might be carried out. He could certainly say truthfully that the lady was a very attractive person. At any rate, she was so to Krakousky.

However, the count did not feel at liberty to make a long stay in Metropolia and the next day proposed to return. But the princess told him that she was preparing a message for Prince Otto and had not yet got it ready. She hinted that she was waiting for some decision on the part of the prime minister and the cabinet. Of course Count Carl could not disobey what was a command and put off his return till he should have the lady's permission to go.

The count from the moment he met Caspar Audenreid saw nothing of him. When he asked the princess what had become of his associate she told him that he seemed to have taken a fancy to her maid of honor and the maid seemed to reciprocate. "I have therefore permitted them to remain together," she said, "not caring to interfere in a love affair."

It occurred to Count Carl that this was a device on the part of the princess to prevent her own flirtation with himself from being interfered with. He would have chuckled at having so readily slipped into the princess' favor in place of his master had it not been that he was fascinated with her and remembered that a union between himself and one of royal blood was impossible.

The count was kept at the capital of Metropolia so long that he feared when permitted to leave that he would meet with a severe reception. However, he tore himself away at last and ventured to Auretania.

"Well," said his master, "what do you think of her?"

"She's not half bad," replied Carl.

"Not half bad! Why, you're in love with her."

"How does your highness know that?" stammered Carl.

"Audenreid, whom I sent to watch you, has told me so."

"Well, I warned you. What did Audenreid know of the matter? He saw nothing of me."

"I was Audenreid."

"You Audenreid."

"Yes, and the maid of honor was the princess."

The approaching nuptials of the royal couple were announced, and in due time Prince Otto proceeded with a suit at the head of which was Count Carl. After the royal wedding had been celebrated the nuptials between Count Carl and the maid who he had supposed was the princess took place, the prince giving the bride away. As soon as the latter wedding had taken place the prince slapped his friend on the back and said.

"I wouldn't trust you out of my sight."

"I return your royal highness' compliment."

Winning an Autograph.

Like Rudyard Kipling, the famous novelist, Hall Caine has a great dislike for the autograph "fiend," and he has to be a clever collector who can get the signature of the author of "The Manxman."

On one occasion, however, Mr. Hall Caine was beaten by a very smart trick. While on a visit to America he was besieged by autograph hunters, but he refused them all. Then one day a porter at his hotel brought him a registered letter. He was asked to sign a receipt, and was then informed that he must sign a second paper which had to be returned to the sender of the letter.

Quite unused to American ways, he did so, and when he opened the letter, after the porter had retired, his astonishment may be imagined when he found that it contained nothing but a note of thanks for his autograph, which he had of course appended to the paper!—Pearson's.

Expense Didn't Bother Him.

That the East Indian of wealth is a luxury loving individual and cares no more for his rupees than does the Pittsburgh millionaire for dollars when entertaining is shown by the following example:

One afternoon an Indian gentleman, clad in modern English garments, entered the salesroom of an automobile firm in Calcutta. The visitor was met by the salesman, who proceeded to explain the various good points of five electric vehicles on exhibition. The Indian stopped him with a wave of his stick and said:

"Send them to my palace at once."

"Which ones?" asked the surprised salesman.

"All of them," was the answer.

The purchaser was the nizam of Haidarabad, and the above incident is related by T. K. Stuart, an American electrical engineer, who knows India by heart from long experience.

An Old London Paper.

On Sept. 8, 1666, a special number of the London Gazette was issued, the reason being, as described in its first paragraph: "The ordinary course of this paper having been interrupted by a sad and lamentable accident of fire lately happened in the city of London, it hath been thayht fit for satisfying the minds of so many of his majestie's good subjects, who must needs be concerned for the issue of so great an accident, to give this short, but true, accompt of it."

The first number had been published on Nov. 14, 1665, when the court was at Oxford on account of the great plague, and the paper was therefore called at first the Oxford Gazette. With its twenty-fourth number, however, it became the London Gazette, by which name it has been known ever since.

s and Playgrounds.

I do not know of any better way to teach a boy to be honorable and straight than to give him a chance to play with his comrades, says Justice Hughes. In the playground he learns because he does not want anybody else to cheat him, and he is "down" on the boy that does not play fair; he will establish standards of conduct which we must maintain in the community and particularly in our great cities. If there is one thing that we need more than another it is the constant emphasis among our citizens of that spirit of fair play, that willingness to give and take, that generosity in defeat and that lack of assertiveness in victory which we identify with true sport and which is learned best of all in childhood upon the playground.—Chicago Journal.

A Rebuff.

Said one Indianapolis jokesmith to another: "How's your stuff selling now? Been getting any checks lately?"

"Not exactly, but I received a couple of repulses today."—Indianapolis News.

Three Vitriols.

The "three vitriols" are green vitriol (sulphate of iron), blue vitriol (sulphate of copper) and white vitriol (sulphate of zinc).

Business Picking Up

Cold weather is certainly welcomed by the merchants of Monessen and many are selling their large supply of winter coats after it had looked for a while as though they would be carried far into the winter before the cold weather would demand extra weight in the clothing line.

Orders for more coats are daily leaving Monessen for the clothing jobbers and manufacturers of larger cities, and many of the clerks are now required to work overtime to open the Christmas parcels that are arriving and must be checked up and put on display.

Indications are that the Christmas trade this year will be far exceed that of former years in this city.

State Has Deficit

This state has a big deficit over last year in its financial affairs. There is yet $1,900,000 due the schools of the state not paid. There has been much reform introduced during the present administration and many jobs created. State Treasurer Robt. K. Young claims the trouble is in the amount of big appropriation approved.

Famous Star Olympic Today

FRANK KEENAN THAT FAMOUS STAR, PRONOUNCED THE GREATEST CHARACTER ACTOR THAT EVER APPEARED ON BROADWAY IN THAT MAGNIFICIENT DRAMITIZATION "THE LONG CHANCE" IN FIVE ACTS. adopted from the story by the renowned author, Proctor B. Kyne. produced by Edward Le Saint, a Broadway Universal feature. Frank Keenan as Harley Hennage, is a gambler at Red Dog Junction. He is secretely in love with Marie, the town belle. Marie falls in love with Corbley, a prospector. Harley resents Corbley's instructions and tells him to get out of town; but when he learns of Marie's love for Corbley, he relents and leaves himself. He buys the Silver Dollar Retreat in San Pasquil and in time came to be known as the worst man in town. Then is when Frank reaches his zenith in playing this wonderful picture, pronounced the greatest character actor that ever appeared on Broadway.— Tomorrow at Olympic in six acts.

Fire At Donora

An explosion, followed by fire about 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon badly damaged the Stewart building in McKean avenue, Donora, occupied by the Boston Clothing company and the A. D. Scott grocery firm on the ground floor and four families in the flats above. The loss will amount to several thousand dollars and is partially covered by insurance.

That the blaze was extinguished before the building was entirely destroyed and before others were ignited is due solely to the heroic and untiring efforts of the Donora fire department. One woman and several children, overcome by smoke, were borne from the burning building by the fire laddies.

The blaze followed a terrific gas explosion in one of the apartments in the second floor of the building. It is thought that members of a Greek family, name unknown, and absent at the time, left gas burning in a small stove and also in a jet. The supposition is that the stove blaze blew out and that the collecting gas was set off by the flame in the jet. A door of the apartment was blown through a window and across the street by the force of the explosion. Every window in the building was shattered.

It seemed for a time that the First National bank building adjoining would be set afire, but the prompt work of the fire department prevented this. The woman who was carried unconscious from the burning building was Mrs. Edmunds, mother of Dr. Samuel Edmunds, of Donora. The others saved were children.

Assessing Of Dogs

A different manner for the assessment and collection of taxes on dogs provided by a new law, is causing a general misunderstanding, partly because dog owners seem not to comprehend that taxes must be paid in advance to the assessor.

In the past, dog taxes have been collected by the borough authorities after proper assessment had been made. The new law changes nearly everything.

Assessors are compelled to publish in at least one newspaper, a list of all the assessed dog, giving sex, the name of owner and the number of his tag. Two dollars fine is provided by this stringent law for non-assessment. The owner of the premises upon which a dog is found, is to be considered the legal possessor of the animal, even though he may disclaim all knowledge of the dog.

Amendments to the law for the assessment of dogs require that all dogs for whom the owner neglects to pay, upon proper notice shall be shot, either by the owner or by a constable. Upon completion of the assessors' reports, the constable or the state police may be called upon to make a general killing of unlicensed dogs, provided, however, that in the event of such action the county commissioners shall give 30 days' notice in the newspapers.

One of the acts of 1915 allows townships to make their own laws governing the collection of dog tax, and some townships have decided that dog tax shall be collected when the assessment is made.
